

Brian W. Dippie is professor emeritus of history at the University of Victoria, British Columbia, where he taught from 1970 until his retirement in 2009. A specialist in the history of Western American art, he has published extensively on George Catlin, Frederic Remington, and Charles M. Russell, including Catlin and His Contemporaries: The Politics of Patronage (1990), and "Green Fields and Red Men" in George Catlin and His Indian Gallery (2003). He is recipient of the C. M. Russell Museum's Heritage Award for 2014.